3	Aeroplan funded flights	The first free commercial flights to Canada for Ukrainian refugees offered through a fundraising drive involving Aeroplan points won't be available until June. On April 20, U.S.-based organization Miles4Migrants said it had expected flights to begin as early as May using the new fund, a partnership between the charity, the Shapiro Foundation and Air Canada, which owns the Aeroplan loyalty program. The goal is to cover flights to bring at least 10,000 people fleeing from Russia's invasion to Ukraine who have been approved to come to Canada. The program will now be up and running next month. For the full story:  https://www.ctvnews.ca/politics/aeroplan-funded-flights-bringing-ukrainians-to-canada-expected-to-begin-in-june-1.5909189
